

CONCORDIA UNIVERSITY

M.A. IN PHILOSOPHY

General

The Department of Philosophy offers a program of study leading to the degree of M.A. in Philosophy. Its orientation is primarily in the direction of contemporary philosophy, both European and Anglo-American. Training is provided through formal seminars and thesis supervision. Enrollment is deliberately restricted to ensure the possibility of frequent and meaningful contact between the student and the professors. One of the central aims of this program is to provide the level of rigorous training which should well prepare the student for subsequent work at the doctoral level.

Students may enter one of the two options: Option A - M.A. with Thesis or Option B - M.A. with Research Papers.

Courses are scheduled in the late afternoon and evening to accommodate both full-time and part-time students.
